FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1911

Headquarters in charge of Hugh Nichols have been opened in Cincinnati to boom Gov. Harmon for the democratic nomination for president next year.

Naturally enough county officers are delighted with the ruling of Attorney General Hogan reversing one by one his predecessors in which he holds that the pay of these officials will be computed on the 1910 population, instead of that of 1900, as held by his predecessor. This means that in all counties where there was an increase of population, the officials will get increased pay.

YOUNGSTOWN

Receiver Herman Glick, an appointee of the U. S. court to wind up the affairs of the failed firm of Western Brothers Co., has sued the Youngstown Credit Men's Association, Co. and W. C. McKelvey, its manager, for $25,000 damages to his reputation on account of a letter recently sent out by the defendants. He says the defendants are trying to control the affairs of the bankrupt in order to get big fees.

Through the earnest efforts of Prosecutor R. A. Beard, with the agreement of the county commissioners, Caldwell & Drake, the new court house builders, will not get their 15 per cent. balance till the contract is completed, the payment now being favored by the building commission. Little or no use being in a great hurry about it. The county is good for it and is not going to move away or give leg bail.

Joseph G. Butler of this city—one of the most prominent citizens—president of the Chamber of Commerce—is getting to be not only a voluminous writer, but notable. In the National Magazine for this month he has an intensely interesting article and one of great historic value touching the English ancestral home of the Washingtons. It is in Northampton and held by English gentlemen in London. Mr. Butler last August visited the old home of the Washingtons and later had word from the owner that he would sell or lease the property, which is advocated by Mr. Butler and also by Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, in London.

Elmer Benson of 209 West Federal street has very rare books he picked up in Europe. One of the volumes is "Saxo Grammaticus' History of Denmark, and from this it is said Shakespeare procured the plot of Hamlet, the work was printed in Paris in 1514.

John K. Weir, ex-county infirmarian directed for two terms, for 20 years a resident of this city, coming here from Wheeling, W. Va., died Saturday afternoon in the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. R. Nause. He was a naffer by trade and had held important positions in addition to that of infirmarian director. He was also a decennial appraiser of real estate in this city. He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, of which he was a past regent and one of the most stalwart of republicans. His wife died years ago. He is survived by these children: Mrs. J. R. Nause, Mrs. Charles Sisco and Mrs. Will Parick. The funeral was Tuesday afternoon.

Boardman Center is to be distinguished by one of the most palatial rural homes in this or any other section, the magnificent dwelling to be put up by Frank Hitchcock of the Andrews-Hitchcock company of this city. The plans are reported completed and indicate a building to cost $20,000, the mansion to be surrounded by extensive and beautiful grounds that are to be provided with a lake. Part of the land upon which the building is to stand was bought from the Boardman board of education recently and is that upon which the Boardman centralized school now stands. The house is to be an extensive one, as it will have 22 rooms. The school will be moved to the land secured in trade from Mr. Hitchcock, the land a short distance south of the center. A six-room addition will be built, the spring, the contract having been already let. It is quite clear Boardman is very much in the swim and on the boom.

Officials in the court house are authority for the statement, "to which we may well make affidavit, that the new court house building commission and furniture buyers practically did not consult a county official, with perhaps the exception of the county commissioners, as to the sort of furniture needed in the new temple, nor ask a word as to its arrangement, though the officials were the very ones who should have been consulted. Such faithful and competent public servants as Judge Griffith, Auditor Wm. B. Jones, Sheriff Turner, Treasurer Truesdale, Recorder Eddie Westwood and others know exactly what is needed, how it should be placed and what improvements are worth while. As it is nearly all the furniture which with renovating or well cleaning, would look as good as new and is as serviceable as any that can be bought, will likely be sold for little or nothing or flung into the heap of refuse. Thus it is with the fine and costly hardwood, steel and brass-cased counters in the probate court. That counter is as good today and will be for decades as when it came finished from the factory, but it, though costing between $400 and $500, isn't blue-blooded enough for the palace of pictures, marble, granite, bronze, brass and the Lord knows what else.

The city is to have a large new park, 41.55 acres, partly the Crandall property on the North Side, recently donated conditionally that the park be improved and a bridge built at Fifth avenue within the next five years. The deeds have been approved by City Solicitor David G. Jenkins. The five deeds are from Silas Shook—4.15 acres; William Rayner estate company—12.05 acres; H. K. Wick—8.21 acres; two from the Crandall estate—3.26 and 13.88 acres. This will be a fine addition to the other parks—Mill Creek, Idora, the East End or Lincoln, Wick and Avon, the latter and Idora, however, not belonging to the city. Nearly all these parks are of considerable extent. There should be a lot of small ones, say of one or two acres, every here and there. And now, when land in the suburbs may be had reasonably, is the time to get busy and acquire territory.

Attorney A. B. Calvin, last week in mountain wilds of West Virginia closing up oil leases, had to make his way into the backwoods regions on a hand car and on horseback. Most of the property owners on the south side of West Federal street from the 17-foot log at the Delbel block to Spring Common have offered to donate the land to straighten the street if the city will pay the expense of moving back their buildings. It looks as though the proposed improvement might be made.

The local lodge of Knights of Columbus last Sunday entertained about 800 of their brethren from eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

The good roads commissioners of District No. 1 on Monday received bids for the improvement of the Loveland hill on the Poland road out of Haseltown, by Bro's of Calla were the low bidder.

The fine new Evergreen Presbyterian church on the South Side, erected at a cost of $30,000, was dedicated last Sunday with imposing ceremonies.

Snow made traveling difficult on many city streets. Money making. There is every promise that the population of the city will increase thousands before the close of the year. Indeed, it would not be surprising if the population doubled in the next ten years.

The expected has happened. Joseph W. Weiss is a full-fledged candidate for the nomination for mayor on the republican-Garfield-republican-tickler. Mr. Weiss—the bunch calls him Joe—has been whooping things up politically for some time and it was thought all along he had something up his sleeve to spring on his party and the people. It is not likely he will give the nomination, but Joe'll have a lot of fun out of it and will get a lot of advertising for himself, and his real estate business. The hottest republicans now out and busy for the nomination are F. A. Hartenstein and Frank Davis.

James Mackey, who is one of the best known residents of Mahoning county, now living on McGuffey street, extension in retirement, was 82 years of age last Tuesday. He is in rather feeble health, but is still able to be about, coming into the city now and then on business and meeting and greeting friends.

GRINDING TEA INTO POWDER.

Makes as good, if not better, beverage than the whole leaf.

History tells us that when coffee was first brought to the cities of Western Europe the first makers of it were Turks. They roasted and ground the berries and served the liquor as it is served to this day in the East—grits and all. We still drink coffee as we drank it then, with this difference, that we mostly omit the grits and drink an infusion instead of a decoction. It was not so with tea. No Chinaman was imported with the first pound of tea to teach us how to make and drink it. The consequence has been that we have never drunk tea in the Chinese way—that is, as a simple infusion.

At first there seems to have been great doubt as to how to deal with the new herb. It is even said that it was sometimes boiled, with spinach. The old phrase, "a dish of tea seems to bear out this legend. Finally it came to be settled that the most wholesome and pleasant way to treat the tea leaf was to make it into a kind of sweet soup, with sugar and milk or cream. I have personal knowledge of no country in Europe but one where tea is used as in China—Portugal, which got its knowledge of tea making from a province of China, with which at that time no other nation of Europe was in contact.

It was while traveling on horseback with a guide in the wilder parts of Portugal, away from the shops and inns, where we had perforce to make experiments in the most economical use of the few ounces of tea and coffee that we could afford to carry with us, that we hit upon a discovery. Having no milk we drank our tea as most Portuguese drink theirs, as a simple infusion, sweetened with sugar.

I remembered to have read, I believe in the travels of Abbe Huc, that when the Chinese desire to be thrifty in the use of the finer and more expensive teas they grind the leaf to powder and use less for the infusion. We found that tea could be ground in a coffee mill as easily as coffee; that tea made with the powder is as good as or better than when made with the whole leaf, and that the powder, as it naturally would, goes further than the tea leaf.—London Times.

Bride Did Some Thinking, Too.

A bridal couple recently came before the Registrar in a small town in Mecklenburg. The official in due formula asked the bridegroom if he would take the woman as his wedded wife. He answered: "No, I must think the matter over."

There was consternation and protestation among the assembled company, and the bridegroom finally asked for an hour in which to reflect. He then shut himself up alone in a room and spent an hour meditating on the future.

At the end of that time the couple made their second appearance before the Registrar. The bridegroom replied to the usual question with a joyful "Yes!"

The official then asked the bride the same question. Her reply was very loud and distinct.

"No," she said. "I can't accept such a weathercock, weak-minded individual as husband."

She then drew herself up with scornful dignity and left the room.

In a Man's Pockets.

A fairly well-equipped gentleman true to his calling and to his friends carries quite a kit of tools. There is a jackknife, a match box, a cigar cutter, a nail file, a corkerew, a finger nail tool and possibly a cigar holder, and some good five-centers to give away. And yet women wonder what he finds to put in his pockets.

To facilitate further the business of just hanging around, he must have a little money, a handkerchief, bunch of keys, fountain pen, some lead pencils and sharpener, eye glasses, notebook, watch, old letters, papers or more or less supposed value and a cardcase. Not one pocket could be spared unless it is the one on his nightshirt, and that looks so sweet.—Clay Center (Kan.) Times.

Germany's Telegraphy.

Wireless telegraphy is rapidly coming into commercial utility in Germany, and large numbers of "spark messages," as such telegrams are called, are transmitted daily at a cent a word. There is a service in operation between Denmark and Prussia, while two German steamers running between Kiel and Korsor are equipped with instruments and maintain continuous communication with both the German and Danish land stations.—Scientific American.

Light of Plants and Flowers.

The strange phosphorescent quality of some plants and flowers is not exactly the same as that possessed by animal matter, but it is as little understood. It seems to be an absorption of light and a subsequent liberation of it. If a nasturtium is plucked during sunshine and carried into a dark room, the eye, after a few minutes, will discover the flower by the light emitted from its leaves.

Child Insurance in Belgium.

Insurance of children under the age of three years has been forbidden in Belgium. It was discovered that a certain nurse had insured seven or eight children under her care without the knowledge of the parents. All the children died and the nurse collected the insurance.
